

Spencer Brown in association with RBM presents:

SPENCER BROWN

The post-modern buffoon returns a changed man

Leicester Square Theatre, London
October 1st @ 9pm

After an eight-year absence, the “underground comedy genius” (BBC Radio 2) returns to the comedy scene as something new and different. Having shed his wacky clown persona, Spencer Brown has found a new voice, close to that of an actual human being.

“So original and exciting” Daily Telegraph

In this self-titled show Spencer turns his ability to craft “splendid one liners” (Chortle) about his own life to the value of innocence and why it’s worth protecting something we know that one day we’re going to lose.

How do we navigate our way through a society that indoctrinates us with its warped values through evil propaganda such as the Ugly Duckling story; a world where everyone pretends to be our friend but no one calls their grandma? What does the future hold for a new generation warped by pornography and technology? And how will a man with a small daughter (under 3 foot) raise her so that one day she can find her innocence again?

“Enough energy to power the national grid – expect the unexpected”
The Stage

Since his last full live solo shows, Spencer has presented TV shows including Lip Service (ITV2 with Holly Willoughby) and The Sexy Ads Show, (Channel

Spencer Brown in association with RBM presents:

5's most successful ever commission) and he's also done some stuff that he's proud of. He's starred in various TV and radio shows, including Nathan Barley (Channel 4) in the role of Rufus, Ade Edmondson's Teenage Kicks (Radio 4) and he's played the lead role in the soon to be released feature film, The Devil Went Down to Islington.

Spencer has also become an award-winning director, winning multiple prizes including the Méliès d'Argent and St Louis International Film Festival's Best of Fest, qualifying his film, The Boy with a Camera for a Face, for the upcoming Méliès d'Or and the 2015 Academy Award. He is directing his first feature film next year.

Through it all he's still been doing stand up, performing in top clubs around the world from the UK (Comedy Store, Backyard, 99 Club) to the USA (The Comedy Cellar, UCB, Stand Up New York, The Improv), releasing a stand up Album through Laughing Stock, and becoming the first British comedian to have his own special on Sweden's equivalent of the BBC and appearing on NBC's Last Comic Standing.

"A brain behind the buffoonery"
Guardian

"Cutting edge, Critically acclaimed: could this be the future of comedy?"
The List

Venue: Leicester Square Theatre, 6 Leicester Place, London WC2H 7BX –
The Lounge venue

Dates: 1st October

Time: 21:00

Tickets: £10

08848 733433

www.leicestersquaretheatre.com

Age: 16+

Media contact: Julian Hall at Textual Healing PR

07810 486658 / textualhealingpr@gmail.com / @TextualHealing2